Sakura-Con happened!

- Over the weekend, we talked to 323 people! About 24% hadn't heard of us.
- We sold 69 pre-registrations!
- We made nearly triple the amount of non-registration merch income compared to 2019!
- We experienced a lot of goodwill for Kumo at the booth! Thank you!

Next Up:

- Chibi Chibi Con - May 21 at Evergreen College, WA
- Portland Pride Waterfront Festival - June 12 - June 19 at Waterfront Park

Keep your eyes on your email and discord for booth opportunities!

Good of the Order!

Did you know - Excerpts from the staff manual

How to get help

If you're in a difficult situation at the convention and need assistance, please request help to assist you. If you have a radio, please call for help on the dispatch channel. You can call or text your supervisor or a fellow staff on your team. If this is not an option, you can even see if a nearby staff member is available who can make contact for you, or send a message to the Operations Office.

Kumoricon uses the Code Adam missing-child program that is used in many retail stores. In case of a missing child at the convention, Yojimbo and other select, trained staff will carry out this procedure. Designated on-duty staff will systematically search the convention area by area and keep track of the progress of the search, including involving police if necessary. In the overwhelming majority of cases, this quickly locates the missing child. If a Yojimbo who is carrying out Code Adam requests your assistance, please follow their instructions if your staff duties allow for it.

Before the convention, if you need help, you can email or call your supervisor or director. If you're having an issue and need somebody else to talk to, you can also contact another board member, the Chair, or Vice Chair.

Many basic pieces of information can be found at the public website, including the convention code of conduct, the staff policies, registration prices, the full convention schedule, a list of guests of honor, and archived copies of previous years' websites.
